1.Be courteous, patient and polite as you try to reach out to those who might not be as familiar with the event as you are. Introduce yourself and let them know that it is a little soiree of sorts and they can bring anything they want to "cook" on the grill. 2. If you make the mistake of bringing too many items to prepare, try taking things out of your vehicle or not bringing everything you planned on. 3. If the new members don't know how to prepare for a gathering, try showing them how to cut meat, cook on the grill or learn the art of simple cooking. 4. When preparing food or drinks, remind people that it is okay to "finish what is on your plate" if they are still hungry. Before serving another item, ask if there are any leftovers and wait for their confirmation before serving more food.
